Dear Author and Editorial Board.

I trust this review finds you well. Overall, I found the paper to be quite engaging, making a meaningful contribution to the education realm. The author's perspective on the topic adds value to the discussion. However, to enhance the overall impact of the paper, I suggest a few areas for clarification and refinement.

Firstly, the methodology used in the research could benefit from clearer statement within the text. The term "comprehensive analysis" needs further elaboration. I recommend specifying that your research employs a mixed methodology, incorporating both qualitative aspects such as classroom behaviors and interviews with educators and parents, and quantitative elements like questionnaires, surveys, and standardized test results. Moreover, it would be helpful to provide details on how the qualitative data was analyzed, such as using rubrics of observation, and the instruments used for the analysis of quantitative data.

Another aspect requiring attention is the clarity around participant details. The paper does not mention the number of participants involved in the study, their age range, or the distribution between homeschooled and traditional elementary or high school students. Including this information, perhaps in an additional section or within the results, would enhance the transparency of your research. Additionally, offering insights into the criteria used for sample selection of participants would further strengthen the study.

Lastly, I recommend updating your references. The current ones do not include sources from the last five years. Integrating more recent references would not only enhance the credibility of your study but also provide additional support to your arguments.

In closing, I want to emphasize the positive aspects of your study. The paper makes a valuable contribution to education. I appreciate the effort put into the research and believe that with some adjustments, it can reach an even wider audience and have a more significant impact.

Best regards,
