

Review of: "Perceptions and Teaching Strategies for School Inclusion"

Arturo Basbas

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

To: The Author

Your paper is well written and reveals important findings. It underscores the complexity of implementing inclusive education and the need for comprehensive support and training for teachers. I have just some points to suggest:

1. Emphasize the role of teachers and school heads in creating an inclusive education.
2. Provide valuable information on the "research gap" or the challenges and opportunities associated with school inclusion.
3. Express more detailed descriptive analysis, especially in Table 2.
4. Add a specific legend or include in the scope of "analysis" the abbreviations "DT," "half," and "N," as they were not commonly used in your narrative, as you have already used "SD" instead.
5. Add some recommendations.

Thank you.