

Review of: "The Success of Ecological Leadership for the Church Expectations"

Csaba Patkós

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The objective of the paper is relevant and has practical and theoretical relevance for organization building and institutionalization.

In the Introduction chapter it would be advisable to use more references to show the state-of the-art situation of the related literature. As the references to the Holy Bible are key to the issue, they might be integrated to a separated sub-chapter.

The Research Method part is too short and scratchy. The details of the field survey should be described.

It is recommended to separate the Discussion part to the second half of the paper, after the main body of own research.

The use of the "parallel lives" method is effective and practical, the use of collating tables would further improve it.

As "ecological leadership" plays a central role in the research, it would be recommended to describe it in detail.

The photos, included in the text should have numbers, as in-text references to them would be ideal. An extended English spelling revision would be advisable.