

Review of: "Neuroeconomics as an Appropriate Approach to Clarify the Economic Model: The Case of Russia"

Antonio M. Cunha¹

¹ Instituto Superior de Administração e Gestão

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I wrote my comments to the article in the attached pdf.

This is an opinion article, not a scientific paper. There are too many sentences without citing a reference or a historical context. I could feel that the author has some emotional connection to the theme, so the article is not neutral.

Even so, it is not even suited to be published in a newspaper as an opinion column, as the conclusion has no connection to the body of the article.

I suggest reviewing each paragraph and find references to support each sentence, and restructure de conclusion, where the first part (description of what neuroeconomics can do) should be in the body of the article.