

Definition

Irreducible Temporal Cost

Dario Ricardo De Santiago Sasinka¹

1. Universidad Tecnológica Nacional, Argentina

The minimum time value that every physical interaction must naturally consume. It is an intrinsic property of reality that ensures causality is a successive process rather than a superposition of simultaneous events

Declarations

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.