General Comments

This paper is very interesting because it deals with aspects of motivation, capability, opportunity and behavior that we often encounter and experience in life.

Suggestions

1. It would be better if each diagram explained the intent and purpose of the model and for whom this model would be applied
2. The first model is easy to understand, but the second, third, and fourth models become more complicated, can the second, third, and fourth models be modeled empirically and how will they be explained later?
3. Each model will become clearer if it is equipped with an explanation or statement why they can be related to each other between one variable and another
