

Review of: "The Impact of TikTok on Students: A Literature Review"

José Fernández-Cerero¹

¹ Universidad de Sevilla

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article entitled "The Impact of TikTok on Students: A Literature Review" is relevant to the journal's mission. The article is important because This literature review aims to explore and summarize the existing research on the impact of TikTok on students.

There is coherence between the title of the article and its content, as well as in the abstract, which clearly sets out the research work undertaken.

Although the theoretical basis is adequate for the study in question, it is necessary to expand the theoretical framework as it is insufficient and with more up-to-date references that allow for greater understanding in the scientific community.

In terms of the methodology of the article, although the review is correct, it does not follow a methodology appropriate to a review of the literature. Following this line, a review of the literature should be carried out based on the different databases by selecting a series of criteria where the different lines of research can be observed.

There are no limitations in the document.

This evaluator considers that the document does not meet certain characteristics to accept a literature review research.