This article brings up the topic of Alzheimer's disease and questions its causal factors. With the recent onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, it puts forward a valid question: can COVID-19 be linked to Alzheimer's disease? Although it does bring up some genetic linkage between Alzheimer's and COVID-19, I would have appreciated many more details and a discussion about this linkage. Definitely, more long-term studies are needed to correlate this association. Nevertheless, it's an interesting topic that the author has brought up.
