

Review of: "Technological Advancement and Changing Skills: Imperative for a Paradigm Shift in Education Delivery in Zambia"

Ernesto Pacheco-Velazquez<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Tecnológico de Monterrey

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I think it's an excellent divulgation article. I loved the writing, I really like the vision that the author has about the education of the future, and I agree with many of the statements that the author makes. However, I do not understand what the purpose of the text is, if it is only an act of reflection on the future of education or if it wants to give us new knowledge. I do not understand the name of the article, because the author's reflections do not apply only to this country, it could even apply to developed countries. Higher education is experiencing a turning point, and the reflection is as valid for Zambia as for any other country. Congratulations on the article, I really find it very valuable.