Dear Editor in Chief,

I have gone through the paper the writer has tried in exploring some point for academic consumption. However, I can find some of the basic things that are required to make the paper publishable in any academic journal.

The paper needs proper arrangement as required by the journal guidelines. For example,

The paper is written based on characterizations and doesn't follow the principles of each chapter.

The chapter is expected to introduce the research work, chapter two literature reviews, chapter three methodology, chapter analysis and findings and the last conclusion and make recommendations.

2. The paper is not written as a journal paper but it looks like a project.

3. There is no connectivity among the chapters

The writer needs to study the paper based on the above observations and rewrite accordingly.
