dear author

The results of the abstract of the article are ambiguous.

What does stored devices mean?

Similar studies are not mentioned in the introduction. The necessity of doing research is not clear.

The data collection tool, the number of questions in each model the Likert scale and the validity & reliability are not well explained.

The demographic characteristics of the subjects were not reported. The research was designed based on the theoretical constructs of behavior, however, there is no mention of explaining the theoretical constructs in the results, discussion and conclusions and this is a major weakness of the research.

The number of references is small.
