

Review of: "A Review of the Drawdown Zone in African Reservoirs: Current Knowledge, Understudied Areas and Recommendations for Future Research"

Chandan Surabhi Das¹

¹ Barasat Government College

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is interesting writing. There is, however, a lack of more detailed data analysis and a lack of a literature review, which creates a gap between paragraphs in the introduction. It is possible to fill this gap by using data techniques that will provide more support for the author's claims by utilizing these techniques.

A rewrite of the method section should be made so that it is clear and concise. It is suggested that some ecological implications or relevant techniques be used.

Findings and discussion should be separate. A similar study from another part of the world would provide the basis for the discussion. However, an enlightening and comprehensive view of the topic is presented in the discussion presented.

Conclusions are not necessarily the result of the findings. There are some specific suggestions that should be made.