The paper deals with an interesting case; however, it does not sufficiently explore the theory on cultural heritage and patrimony, so the contribution beyond the case study is not clear. There are legal, economic, and architectural reflections; it would be necessary to choose a perspective and work in more detail. If the option is to make a detailed description of the houses, there is a lot of material that can be obtained in archives, furniture catalogs, etc., that documents the history of the buildings. It is not publishable in this version that has been sent for opinion.
