

Review of: "What Went So Wrong in Economics"

Ioana Anda Milin<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of Agriculture and Veterinary Medicine Timisoara

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The work deals with a particularly important theme of economic theory - which the author has tackled with courage and professionalism.

The law of diminishing marginal returns is validated by numerous empirical studies, but at the same time it is also logical; the "problem" of this law remains universally valid, regardless of the evolution of the economy and society as a whole. So the subject of the paper is a challenge for theoretical economists but also for the real economy, which will continue to generate numerous disputes!!!

I would like to emphasize that the literature review is particularly complex and complete, and I congratulate the author for this achievement.