

Review of: "Determinants of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) Sustainable Development in Africa"

Meine Pieter van Dijk¹

¹ Maastricht University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

the article is very general: the title does not say that the research has been done in Ethiopia, how they collected the data (76% response rate: TO WHAT?)

it is all Likert scales

first they do a correlational analysis (na causality), fortunately later they report on a regression unclear how the dependent variable MSME's sustainable development has been measured?

then they do a correlational analysis again???

all hypotheses are accepted, but the evidence is slim

the terminology should be the hypotheses can not be rejected from the variables which are significant in the regression very little insight is gained in the determinants of success.

typo in title chapter 6 something is interesting, but in this first draft one does not hear about the results between 1980 and 2020)