

Review of: "A brief overview on COVID-19 and its comparison with SARS, MERS, and H1N1"

Ramesh M

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. Correct the following sentences either typographically or grammatically. There are many mistakes and few are given below -

“which identified in China on December 31, 2019”

The common clinical feature

Regarding the mechanism action of 2019-nCoV, some researchers suggested that the ACE2 is the receptor of this novel virus

The COVID-19 is a global pandemics infectious disease which caused by 2019-nCoV or SARS-CoV-2

2. Although the aim of the study includes treatment, it does not appear in the description
3. Instead of reporting individual authors finding in clinical features (Section 2), the collective information could be presented in the table. This could be helpful for the readers to gather the information about clinical features or symptoms
4. The figure could be provided to understand the mechanism (Section 4)
5. The comparative results (Section 6 and 7) needs the presentation in the table
6. The section 6 and 7 may be combined together
7. The outcome of the vaccination and treatment protocol, research progress should be reported
8. What is the newer finding in this manuscript?
9. Why the children are less susceptible to COVID-19?
10. What are the newer strains of COVID-19 and it can be related with MERS