

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Cancer Research and Prevention Foundation

National Cancer Institute

Source

National Cancer Institute. Cancer Research and Prevention Foundation. NCI Thesaurus. Code C39347.

The Cancer Research and Prevention Foundation is a national, non-profit health foundation whose mission is declared as the prevention and early detection of cancer through scientific research and education. The Foundation's expenses fall into two categories: research and education grants that are awarded to institutions, individuals and organizations, and are selected through a grant-review process approved by the National Institutes of Health.