

Review of: "Treading the Thin Line Between Health Ethics and Patient Care in the Application of Telemedicine: The Case of Sound Ethical Guidelines in Telemedicine in Sub-Saharan Africa"

Maria Grazia Modena¹

¹ Università degli Studi di Modena e Reggio Emilia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

- this article discuss about an emerging and intresting topic, discussing about telemedicine and how ethics is important in healthcare.
- The language is clear, and references are updated, making it a good contribution to the field. Overall, it is a good paper offering valuable insights into the intersection of technology, healthcare, and ethics.
- I suggest some changes to further improve the paper:

The abstract should be structured into the Introduction, Materials and Methods, Results, and Conclusion.

Provide readers with tables and diagrams for better visualisation of the information.