Dear author(s),

The short article is interesting as a discussion starting point; however, in my opinion, there are several directions that need further exploration. Please analyze the following aspects:

1. Exactly what type of article is this? Too short to be a review or an original article, it could be a short communication or a hypothesis paper. But again, there are many things to be improved, from the length of the manuscript to the lack of specific and specialized details...
2. As far as I understood through your article, you want to repurpose one of the most commonly used anti-seizure medications, valproic acid. You have to detail it a lot more on every aspect you stated just shortly.
3. Despite the shortcomings, your article has good potential. You should add more details, rephrase and restructure, and resend the manuscript for a second review.
