I found the article concise. The research problem and aims are correctly described. The concepts presented are sufficient to understand the review and the background of the research, but I suggest using more up-to-date references along with the older ones.

The methods, application, and results seem to be correct. It is not clear whether the questionnaire was administered online or face to face.

The findings and discussion sections are clear enough to understand.

I am inclined to recommend the publication of this article.
