Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The idea of research is important and related to reality, but there are some negative points such as: The method used is the semi-experimental method and not the experimental method. The tool was codified only by the opinions of experts and honesty and consistency were not calculated by well-known statistical methods and in more than one way. Not checking the truthfulness and consistency of the tool also makes the results dishonest. Suggestions for improvement: I propose to codify the study tool and calculate its honesty and consistency in more than one way. Clarify the type and form of intervention, which led to an improvement in the experimental group both in knowledge and in direction.
