

Review of: "Climate Change and Sustainability: A Comparative Case Study"

Ahmad Nawaz

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article addresses the global concerns of climate change and sustainability, which entail strategic importance in policy and research avenues. However, it must be improved while considering the following comments,

1. Authors should provide a concrete rationale of choosing India and Sweden for this comparative study. A strong motivation behind the study should be provided.
2. Source of the table should be provided.
3. Environmental and sustainability strategies of Sweden should be appropriately supported by relevant statistics.
4. India's economic conditions, environmental challenges, and strategies for renewable energy should be based on statistics.
5. Conclusion should provide compelling policy suggestion based on the comparative analysis of the two countries having entirely different socio-economic realities.