I find the title of the paper attractive, but the method itself (just the literature review) is not sufficient for a scientific paper.

If the authors decide to work on this topic, I would suggest a critical literature review – at the moment mostly descriptive/narrative on the selected aspects (inserted in so called »model«) is provided.

Further, we would suggest several discursive topics: talking about agritourism there is always a discussion on productive and consumption role of rural areas.

I would appreciate quantitative data on Zimbabwe's agriculture, agricultural population, agritourism – to get an idea of the real tangible and intangible potential of agritourism.

»Model« - one could argue about this. Elaborate more in this field as well.
