

Review of: "Hypocholinergic Stress and Neuronal Pruning in Alzheimer's Disease"

Amanda Cristina Mosini

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article was well-written, providing relevant information on the proposed topic. I noticed the absence of a paragraph discussing a translational perspective, indicating the importance of studies in animals, cells, and other basic research models for advancing clinical treatment based on cholinergic systems.