

Review of: "Sentiment Analysis of Opinions about Online Education in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq during COVID-19"

Aqsa Batool¹

¹ Bahauddin Zakariya University, Multan

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Major Corrections!

While the study addresses an important area of research, several significant shortcomings in the article need to be addressed. Firstly, the absence of an ethics statement is a critical concern. It is crucial for researchers to provide information on whether they obtained ethics approval before data collection. This statement ensures that ethical considerations, such as informed consent and participant confidentiality, were upheld during the study. The lack of an ethics statement raises concerns about the treatment of participants and adherence to ethical guidelines.

The abstract lacks sampling method, data collection method and findings of the study. It affects the manuscript's clarity and professionalism. It is crucial for authors to thoroughly proofread and edit their work to enhance readability and maintain the credibility of the research. A carefully polished manuscript contributes to the overall quality of the research.

A comprehensive literature review is essential to provide a solid foundation for the research and support the claims made throughout the article.

The findings and results section lacks a robust data analysis. While descriptive statistics are provided, a detailed discussion and interpretation of the results are missing. The article fails to include inferential statistical analyses or significance testing, making it challenging to draw meaningful conclusions from the data presented. Comprehensive data analysis is crucial for supporting the study's findings and contributing to the knowledge base in the field.

Limitations and recommendations must be included in the study

I encourage you to address these concerns and revise the manuscript accordingly. I believe that with the necessary improvements, your research could make a valuable contribution to the academic community.