This is a short news article, or so-called perspective article. Overall, it is a good read, but its significance in this journal is unclear. Overall, it does a good job of making readers familiar with the upcoming epidemic in Bangladesh and the different terms used locally for the drug. If the author had highlighted more about the work of the Drugs and Narcotics Department, along with suggestions or plans to improve the situation, that would have been nice. Also, it has a few grammatical errors.
