

Review of: "From Necro-Politics to Necro-Ecology: framing the current climate environmental politics in the Americas"

Natasha Karenina de Sousa Rego

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article articulates necro-policy to necro-ecology to understand and explain some violent phenomena that happens here in America, but also in Africa, Asia, Oceania and Europe, in different levels and crossings. The authors responded throughout the text the questions presented on Introduction. They brought qualified theories and quantitative data to analyze them research's object. The methodology could be more clear in the Introduction, so the readers could see what the fonts were used. Also in Conclusion I suggest for further essays the authors start saying if the main question of research was responded or not. It makes the text circular and help us readers to understand the whole process. Thank you to make available this essay.
