

Review of: "Teaching Method Preference by College Teachers in India"

Pragya Sharma

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The title seems interesting but the paper lacks an overall scientific approach.

Introduction and literature review are very concise and need a more detailed overview including citing actual research including references.

The rationale behind the study is unclear.

What is the hypothesis based on?

How was the sample size calculated?

Did all the participants answer descriptive questions?

The results include preliminary analysis based on percentage and require further analysis.

Discussion does not include any new information nor includes comparison with previous research. There is no discussion of how cultural factors may affect these findings.