The topic of the paper is very interesting and emerging. However, the structure and writing style of the work does not correspond to the requirements of a scientific article, and is more akin to a technical-political document. The manuscript needs to be restructured, with organised and individualised sections. The objectives should be clear, there should be a detailed description of the methodology used, and the reinforcement of the theoretical framework is fundamental for the proper framing and discussion of the topic. In the form presented, the work should not be published.
