

Review of: "[Commentary] Commentary on Sociocultural Beliefs and Systems Restricting Women's Access to their Marital Property Rights in Pakistan"

Noreen Naseer

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article has discussed a very important issue of women in Pakistan, and it has been taken-up by very exhausting literature review. However, it needs local references from Pakistan and connecting it with his debate for women's inheritance rights case. His discourse for women's inheritance rights stand very shallow with simply awareness. I suggest:

1. He needs to clarify his methodology and theoretical frame regarding Pakistani women and their inheritance rights.
2. He needs to engage with more recent and local scholarships to justify his work and need for awareness.
3. In addition, he needs to discuss few court cases and role of Ombudsperson striving for women's inheritance rights.