Review of: "Mapping the Canadian Research Landscape in 2023"

Madhvee Madhou

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is an interesting and informative article that allows an analysis of the research landscape using bibliometrics. It can be used to develop policies to enhance research. However, it might be worthwhile analysing the number of researchers in the institutions relative to the number of publications for a better analysis. The article focuses on universities, but it might be worthwhile mentioning if there are other centres that also contribute to the publication output of Canada.