Thank you very much for inviting me to review this paper. This research is interesting and can be a reference for researchers with a similar research focus.

However, some things need to be sharpened.

In the introduction, both the phenomena section and the research gap section are not sharp enough, they need to be elaborated and framed in better depth. It is necessary to present general information about transportation in Bangkok and show a comparison of each transportation application.

Next, in the research sample size section, please support the sample method and, if possible, consider the number of parameters to be estimated.

Finally, the discussion section needs to add a comprehensive understanding of how this research contributes to existing knowledge.
