The policy dialogue addresses an important issue: the nutrition of women and adolescent girls in Rwanda. There are several issues the authors need to address to improve the presentation of the Policy Dialogue. Details are provided below:

1. I suggest a slight modification of the title as follows: "A Policy Dialogue for the Nutrition of Women and Adolescent Girls in Rwanda." This is a more appropriate title because the contents of the dialogue describe the nutritional status of women and adolescent girls in Rwanda and the need for interventions.
2. There is a need for a brief description of Rwanda (population, place of women, etc.) to enable readers to understand the context of the country.
3. Although references were provided, there are no citations in the text; I suggest that the authors provide in-text citations to enable readers to match and verify the information provided.
4. The Call for Action should be country-specific; the authors should describe individuals and agencies in Rwanda that will be responsible for implementing the activities suggested.
5. The meaning of all acronyms cited in the dialogue should be clearly defined; for example, what does SBC stand for? This should be clarified.
6. In the conclusion, the authors mentioned 'the study'; however, no information was provided on the procedures or results of such a study. This should be revised.
