Thank you for the opportunity to review this paper.

- On the abstract of the paper, the objective of the study and the originality/novelty are not well explained. Sharing just one sentence looks insufficient for this purpose.
- The positioning of the paper is not entirely clear. It is better to explain the gap in this article further.
- While this is an interesting paper, I feel that the constructs need much more precision and development to make a serious contribution to the literature. There are key limitations, which unfortunately outweigh the contributions to the extant literature.
- The discussion challenges your findings and determines the degree of compatibility with previous research.
- What are the theoretical and practical implications of your study and which limitations and possible future research emerge from it?
