Greetings!

I would like to add two aspects based on your future research recommendations. For the long-term impacts, it would be good if sustainable initiatives could track over the time to see the behavioral changes. The strategies in environmental education could be modified by adding a feedback mechanism within communities. Including game-based learning in environmental education would be a better approach. To enhance traditional teaching, add interactive games and stimulation to the curriculum. Lastly, use of reward based system within technological tools could enhance the engagement of diverse audience.

Thank you and good luck.
