

Review of: "“A totally new situation that put us into uncharted waters”: Preschool teachers negotiate their professional identity in respect to online learning during the Covid-19 lockdowns in Greece."

Çağdaş Ümit Yazgan¹

¹ Nevşehir Hacı Bektaş Veli University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

It is admirable that the manuscript focuses on an important category within the field of education. I think that the manuscript is well organized and fluent.

Suggestions for the manuscript are as follows:

For the "Introduction" part, an additional paragraph can be created about the general state of education during the pandemic process.

"Findings" can be presented more effectively. More citations can be made from the interviews. Stronger overlap can be achieved between quotes from interviews and the author's statements.

For example, it is not clear which skills of the participants developed during the pandemic.

There are too many references in the "Conclusions" section. The author should be more active in this section. Rather than references, the author's conclusions can be highlighted.