Abstract: Abstracts are usually < 200 words. They must better explain the research question, the contribution, the main results, and their major implications.

1. Introduction

Start writing an intro with general phenomena that occur in SMEs, rationalization of variables, and empirical reasons for research (gap).

2. Review of the Literature

The literature review should provide a good overview of previous studies on small firms and a clear organization or structure.

3. Materials and Methods

The sampling technique is unclear. Based on the number of samples, a quantitative approach should be better.

4. Results

The discussion section should benefit from a more in-depth analysis of the results, exploring potential explanations and implications for theory and practice.

5. Further Research Directions

From the beginning, this research was limited to one region (Hawassa City), so it can be used for research limitations.
