Thank you for choosing me to review the article, and I thank the author of the article, which I consider very good, especially since it addresses an important case and is rich in sources. Note the following: When mentioning previous studies, it is preferable to cite new sources. The lack of a detailed discussion on the specific methodologies used to gather and analyze data related to effective communication in virtual project teams at Children Mission Africa (CMA) is notable. While the article provides valuable insights into the challenges faced by virtual project teams and offers recommendations for improvement, a more thorough explanation of the research methods employed would enhance the credibility and rigor of the study.

Thank you for your patience and interest.
