

Review of: "Online learning during the COVID-19 pandemic, lessons learned and what's next?"

François Thuot¹

¹ Université Laval

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

-Although pertinent, the subject of the article should be more specific, stating which level of learning (elementary, high school, university...).

-The methodology should be stated (review article?, articles selection method?). The article seems to be in between a thesis and a review article.

-The english language is not accurate and should be thoroughly reviewed.

-The introduction is detailed but the main core of the article (best practices) is short and with very few citations and argumentation.