

Review of: "Economics of Cattle Fattening - A Case of Bangladesh"

Theingi Myint<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Yezin Agricultural University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is very informative and written in a good way in English. It's understandable for everyone with information about marketing costs, benefits, and the value chain of the cattle sector in Bangladesh by using a simple methodology. I have only two questions for the authors.

1. In Table 1. Cattle fattening cost (BDT/cattle) estimation, labor cost was in the fixed cost items; however, labor cost is generally the variable cost as far as estimation for the enterprise budget goes.
2. Regarding the estimation of the marketing cost of slaughtered cattle by the meat seller, is there nothing about labor cost?