Thank you very much for your manuscript.

I have shared my recommendations.

1-) You should avoid the word schizophrenic. You can say patients with schizophrenia.

2-) Be careful about punctuation, as in the following sentence, which should not be used.

An experimental design, based on switching attention deficit and functional magnetic resonance imaging, is proposed.

3-) You can mention environmental factors that may trigger symptoms of schizophrenia, such as air pollution.

4-) You can also mention that smoking is very common in patients with schizophrenia and that smoking can also impact the severity of schizophrenia symptoms (Uludag&Zhao, 2023). Paper name: Narrative review on the association between smoking and schizophrenia symptoms.

5-) You can improve the following sentences. It seems they are not very relevant.

The severity of the negative symptoms (inattentiveness, affective flattening, and avolition–apathy) co-varied with deficits in facial processing. This implies that the expression of emotions and perception are closely linked.

6-) You can improve language with chatbots.
