The reviewer thinks the concept of the manuscript is quite interesting. However, it needs a major revision to be considered for publication. Please carefully address the following issues for the first round of review process:

1. The article lacks a literature review. Please start with a literature survey with a good coherence related to what you have studied.
2. Also, the manuscript needs to follow a structure. There is no well-organized structure. You have to introduce the research field with a good introduction; then, introduce your specific system or idea (systems description); then, explain your methodology. After that, discuss your results in detail. Finally, enclose it with a conclusion section.
3. Use numbering for your sections or subsections.
4. Bring more results. Please expand your research much more than this with more explanation about methodology and results of your study.
5. Please also double check your manuscript in terms of grammar.
