

Review of: "[Commentary] The Pursuit of Healthcare by AI: Thoughtful Delivery Needed"

Debraj Sen<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Armed Forces Medical College

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The authors are complimented on their effort. The authors' intention appears to throw light on the negative implications of unrestricted, unregulated, and unsupervised assimilation of AI in the field of medicine. The topic is current and most relevant.

However, the authors have not been able to cover the topic in 'breadth and depth'. The paper brings forth generalizations without specifics or illustrative examples. It is also disjointed with intermittent references to the medical field of dermatology.

A detailed, structured manuscript with a progressive logical flow of thoughts, covering the negative implications and challenges of incorporating AI in the field of medicine, with illustrative examples, would greatly improve the manuscript.

The authors are also requested to be careful while using technical terms ('AI' is not just 'machine learning').