

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Adult-onset foveomacular vitelliform dystrophy

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Adult-onset foveomacular vitelliform dystrophy. ORPHA:99000

Adult-onset foveomacular vitelliform dystrophy (AOFVD) is a genetic macular dystrophy characterized by blurred vision, metamorphopsia and mild visual impairment secondary to a slightly elevated, yellow, egg yolk-like lesion located in the foveal or parafoveal region.