

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Statistical Replicability

Matthew B.A. McDermott, Shirly Wang, Nikki Marinsek, Rajesh Ranganath, Marzyeh Ghassemi, Luca Foschini

Source

Matthew B. A. McDermott, Shirly Wang, Nikki Marinsek, Rajesh Ranganath, Marzyeh Ghassemi, Luca Foschini. (2019). Reproducibility in Machine Learning for Health. arXiv:1907.01463v1 [cs.LG]. <https://arxiv.org/pdf/1907.01463.pdf>

Statistical replicability refers to the ability of a result to hold under re-sampled conditions that yield different technical configurations, but should not statistically affect the claimed result (e.g., a different set of random seeds, or train/test splits).