

Review of: "Cruises Italian Tourism: Scenarios and Trends After Global Pandemic — The MSC Case"

Gaia Daldanise<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Italian National Research Council

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is original, as it provides insights into Cruise Italian Tourism, with an interesting study of scenarios and trends after the global pandemic, analysing also the MSC case study. Below, I would give some comments to better clarify the research path:

1. Italian tourism: scenarios and trends

The theoretical background is suitable for the aim of the paper. I would suggest using this paragraph as the introduction to the whole research path, explaining the paper's sections to emerge the research structure.

8. Concluding Remarks and Future Research Opportunities

Each stage of the literature review and database study, together with the MSC case study analysis, offers valuable insights in terms of different sustainable and responsible tourism trends in the cruise sector. The findings and their implications could be discussed with the limitations of the work highlighted. I would suggest extending the conclusions with the discussion of every research step, highlighting the different results achieved both from the literature review/database study and from the MSC case study analysis.