Thank you so much for the revised article! I think that it has interesting comments but I wonder whether you could identify the core of your empirical investigation as I feel that you might have several different papers. First, a paper on cheating culture (the tolerance...) could be worth writing as it can explain a temptation for academic dishonesty. Then, you have to provide an analysis based upon the perception of corruption. This is a fascinating topic but it requires an adapted material. The second paper that I see would be more aligned with what you intend to do. How is academic integrity promoted in Poland? You could take all the local rules of the Polish universities to see if academic integrity is on the top of the agenda. It would be really interesting. I think that you need to work on your research question so that it fits the material that you have. Good luck!
