Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The present research paper contributes to the field of language learning technologies which is gaining momentum. However, as a pilot study, it should have focused on assessing one aspect using one assessment tool. The methodology was found a bit too complex for a pilot study.

As for the Literature Review, I recommend that the authors focus more on relevant previous studies showing how their study fill in the gap instead of defining common linguistic terms such as fluency and pronunciation.

If narrowed down to focus on one aspect and one assessment tool, this research paper can be more enjoyable for lay readers.
