

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Reversible cerebral vasoconstriction syndrome

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Reversible cerebral vasoconstriction syndrome. ORPHA:284388

Reversible cerebral vasoconstriction syndrome (RCVS) is an infrequent cerebrovascular disorder characterized by severe headaches with or without focal neurological deficits or seizures, and a reversible segmental and multifocal vasoconstriction of cerebral arteries.