I have gone through the whole article. Generally, the paper is challenging, and the authors need to incorporate the following changes.

* The manuscript lacks a well-structured framework, which is essential for conveying the research effectively. A clear and logical organization of content is indispensable to guide readers through the study's objectives, methodologies, findings, and conclusions. Consequently, the absence of such a structure hampers the manuscript's overall readability and comprehensibility. I think that the paper lacks sufficient technical depth and performance results.

* The text is challenging to follow due to a lack of coherence and clarity in its presentation. It is imperative that the author revisits and rephrases sections that may be convoluted or require better transitions between ideas. Enhancing the overall flow of the manuscript will significantly improve its accessibility to readers.
